NEWSLETTER FOR TSUD FACULTY AND STAFF

AMETER NAMED FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR

Troy State University Dothan Associate Professor of English, Dr. Brenda Ameter, was recently named a Fulbright Scholar by the Fulbright U.S. Scholar Program. Taking a sabbatical leave from TSUD, Dr. Ameter will be teaching Modern American Literature at the Russian State Pedagogical University in St. Petersburg, Russia, for the 2000 Spring Semester.

Ameter said, "I am extremely thrilled to be given the honor of teaching Russian students about the beautifully rich heritage of American Literature. Moreover, Russia has an intriguing and rich culture of its own to offer with many historic cities full of colorful people and grand, majestic landscapes. When I get back to TSUD I hope to develop a course in Russian Literature from what I learn to be offered in the future in conjunction with our present Russian History courses."

The Fulbright Program was established in 1946 under legislation introduced by former Senator J. William Fulbright of Arkansas. The program encompasses a variety of exchange programs, including several types of individual and institutional grants to include the U.S. Scholar Program, the Fulbright Student Program, and the Fulbright Teacher Exchange Program. Approximately 225,000

"Fulbrighters," 84,000 from the United States and 141,000 from abroad, have participated in the program since 1946. About 4,500 new grants are awarded annually.

"I had to wait a long time to find out whether I was accepted," Ameter revealed. "And when I did finally receive the most exciting words I have ever heard, it was through an e-mail from Mrs. Valentina Grouzintseva, a representative from the Moscow Fulbright office, congratulating and welcoming me to Russia!"

The U.S. Scholar Program sends nearly 800 scholars and professionals a year to more than 125 countries, where they lecture or conduct research in a wide variety of academic and professional fields. In 1998-99, these fields ranged from journalism and urban planning to business administration, philosophy, and American studies.

Ameter continued, "Because I have recently become sight impaired, my wonderful husband Malcolm will be able to go to Russia with me, keep me company, and help me get around for the six months that we will be there. Without him I know I would not have been able to accomplish all the hard work it has taken just to get ready to go on this exciting adventure of a lifetime."

CONSTRUCTION UPDATE

We will soon see a section of the Library/Technology Building rise from ground level. The basement area for mechanical (boiler, etc.) and the elevator pit have been excavated and concrete poured in the foundation of the elevator pit. The concrete contractor will soon start constructing the forms for the foundation and walls, steel supports will be positioned, and concrete poured. The plumbing contractor is installing a water main connection and a fire hydrant on the west side of Malone Hall. A drain from the mechanical basement is being installed across the west drive way into the field. The electrical contractor has installed the conduit from the connection on the north side of Adams Hall across to where a transformer pad will be poured at the north end of the Library/Technology Building. The pace of construction will quicken as the prep work is completed. There will be an increase in activity and traffic, so be safety conscience.

A Note of Thanks

Thursday, August 26, was one of the most special days of my life. I thought I was coming to a small meeting of the Creative Writing Club. Instead, I was ushered to the front of the Harrison Room and discovered many friends, students, and colleagues there. Chris Bryant kept assuring me, "You're going to like this, Dr. Ameter. You're going to like this." And, indeed, I did like it. In fact, I was totally awed by the whole experience. I want to thank everyone who contributed in any way to that wonderful day. I cannot think of anything nicer than to have a swing placed in the small garden in my honor. The plaque I was given was beautiful, as was the plaque placed near the swing. I keep thinking that someday my granddaughter will come out here, see the swing, read the plaque near the swing, and have a sense of what TSUD has meant to me. (She already loves the swing.)

I want to thank Mr. Feagin and Dr. Belsches for their kind comments. Most of all, I want to thank Chris Bryant. Since Thursday, many people have told me how much work he did to create this special day. Every once in awhile, a teacher has a student who truly "lights up her life"; Chris Bryant has done that as he has taken my classes, been president of Creative Writing Club, and been editor of the Copper Blade Review. He has given me a thousand wonderful memories; now he has inscribed those memories on beautiful plaques. Thank you.

TSUD'S U.S. SAVINGS BOND CAMPAIGN

Take Stock In America

Troy State University Dothan recently kicked off its 1999 U.S. Savings Bond Campaign. Dr. Michael Malone (R), TSUD president, purchased the first bond of the university-wide drive. TWO STUDENTS ADDED TO THE TSUD AFRICAN-AMERICAN FACULTY-IN-DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Troy State University Dothan is proud to announce the addition of two students to the University's African-American Faculty-in-Development Program. New to the fellowship program are Ms. Jameela Montgomery of Dothan and Ms. Michelle Foster of Auburn.

Ms. Montgomery has a MBA from Alabama A & M University in Huntsville and a BS in Business Administration from Oakwood College. In 1981, she became a budget analyst for the U.S. Army Aeromedical Research Lab at Ft. Rucker, Alabama, and was promoted to financial manager in 1994. A long-time member of Delta Mu Delta, the National Honor Society of Business Administration, she was also a 1997 Ft. Rucker Woman of the Year Nominee.

Ms. Foster has a Master's degree in Applied Mathematics from Auburn University and a BS in Mathematics from Alabama State University in Montgomery. At Auburn University, she worked as a graduate teaching assistant and an office manager for the Minority Drop-In Center and was named secretary to the Black Graduate and Professional Student Association. At Alabama State, Michelle worked on the yearbook staff as student life editor and as student orientation services leader.

Created in 1992, the program is designed to assist TSUD in developing a group of African-Americans who can add to the cultural diversity of the faculty and administrative ranks. The program provides financial support for qualified African-American applicants currently enrolled in a doctoral degree program at a regionally accredited public or private institution of higher education, or in a master's degree program leading to a doctoral degree, to obtain a doctoral degree in exchange for a commitment to teach full-time at TSUD.

In its celebration of the 150th Anniversary of the California Gold Rush, the Arkansas Territorial Restoration invited Dr. Priscilla McArthur to return to Little Rock for a second book signing and celebration on July 3 and 4. Her book, Arkansas in the Gold Rush (1986), recounts gold seekers, especially Arkansans, who left for the gold fields from Fort Smith and Van Buren, Arkansas. A play entitled "The Gathering" was performed as part of the events and depicted the role of black Americans in antebellum Little Rock. There is a passage in the book describing how the trekkers celebrated Fourth of July on the trail which was the basis for Dr. McArthur's remarks. The Restoration continues to use much of Dr. McArthur's research in its historical interpretation of the five period houses on the site.

CREATIVE WRITING CLUB WRITER'S RETREAT A SUCCESS

The Troy State University Dothan Creative Writing Club sponsored a "Writing in the Woods" writer's retreat on Saturday, August 28, 1999, at Landmark Park in Dothan. Registration for the retreat included a brown bag lunch and a copy of the club literary collection, the Copper Blade Review.

Scheduled lecturers at the retreat included: Debbie DeRossett, editor/publisher of Southern Discoveries magazine; Dr. Robert Saunders, author and assistant professor of history at TSUD; author Bonnie Stone; and Ann Varnum, local television personality, book publisher, and author.

Chelle Barney, TSUD Creative Writing Club president, said, "Over thirty participants attended the writer's retreat and it was a new and exciting fund raising event for the club that helped to promote interest in writing in the Wiregrass area. The money that the club made goes to help publish our annual literary collection, and I encourage any interested writer to submit works for the next issue to the TSUD Creative Writing Club."

"We hope success of our first writer's retreat will enable the club to sponsor a similar event on an annual basis. Writers of all ages and degrees are welcome to come to the Creative Writing Club meetings held every third Saturday at Dr. Brenda Ameter's house. The club itself is a great place for writers to improve their skills, make new friends, and stimulate their literary creativity," added Ms. Barney.

For more information on the TSUD Creative Writing Club, please call advisors Mr. Fred Feagin at (334) 983-6556, ext. 235, or Dr. Brenda Ameter at ext. 397.

FROM THE TSUD FAMILY

TSUD Family,

How can we thank you all for the prayers, calls, cards, visits, and assistance. I could feel the prayers being offered that Sunday morning. Ken is recovering nicely and hopes to be back in the swing in 4-6 weeks. The donation sure came in handy feeding the family and buying medication two days before payday.

Again, the caring TSUD family shows why this is such a great place to work.

Love to all,
Chris and Ken

Deborah and I wish to thank all of the TSUD family and the Courtesy Committee for their prayers, concerns, cards, and support during the recent passing of our grandmother Chapman.

FLINN APPOINTED VICE CHANCELLOR FOR TECHNOLOGY FOR THE TSU SYSTEM

In an effort to keep pace with the rapidly growing role of technology in higher education, The Troy State University System has expanded the responsibilities of its principal technology administrator.

Dr. William E. Flinn has been named vice president of technology and assistant vice chancellor for technology for The Troy State University System, effective August 27. The new position is in response to the ever-increasing importance of technology for The TSU System, according to Dr. Doug Patterson, TSU vice chancellor. "Dr. Flinn's expanded role will help create the proper technological environment and will ensure that The Troy State University System gets maximum efficiency from its limited resources," Dr. Patterson said. "(Dr. Flinn's) expertise in technology and its use in higher education will continue to serve the system well."

In his new role, Dr. Flinn will supervise the technology activities of both The TSU System and the Troy campus, including coordination of the System's distance education programs, direction of the programs and services of the Southeast Alabama Technology Network, and coordination of the System's microwave network. He is responsible for computers, radio, television, distance education, networking, and library automation for The TSU System and the Troy campus.

"Technology has become critical to all aspects of learning and teaching," Flinn said. "(The TSU System) is fortunate to have the region's only university-owned microwave system, which links the System's different campuses and allows them to have 24-hour-a-day audio and video for distance education programs." "New programs are under way to provide greater computer access for students and faculty in Troy, including new computer ports in the Adams Student Center," added Flinn.

A native of Mansfield, Ohio, Dr. Flinn is a retired colonel who served in the U.S. Air Force for 22 years and worked for Ball State University in Indiana before joining TSU in 1994. He previously served as vice president of the Community College of the Air Force at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery and as commander of the 3350th Technical Training Group at Chanute Air Force Base in Indiana. He earned his doctorate at Ohio State University.

TSUM DEDICATES NEW COMMONS AREA

The Troy State University System held a special ceremony on September 18, 1999, to dedicate the new Troy State University Montgomery (TSUM) Commons area. The dedication was highlighted by the lighting of a torch that tops an 85-foot clock tower, which will serve as the centerpiece of the new Commons area.

The ceremony actually began on Friday, September 17, at Troy State University Dothan (TSUD) where Dr. Michael Malone and SGA President Rich Arnold started the torch on its journey from Dothan to Montgomery. University officials and students participated in the torch run which brought the flame through each campus. The arrival of the torch in Montgomery on September 18 served as the culmination of a ceremony which included remarks from university administrators and public officials, as well as a performance by the TSU "Sound of the South" Marching Band. Competitive archer Joe Wares of Troy fired a flaming arrow to light the torch at the conclusion of the ceremony.

"The new Commons area will make a difference in the lives of our students," according to Dr. Cameron Martindale, interim president of TSUM.

"Troy State University Montgomery is proud of its leadership role in helping to revitalize downtown," Dr. Martindale said. "This Commons area will provide a focal point on our downtown campus for our students. The Commons area is a major step toward giving TSUM a distinct downtown presence."

Quest for Excellence

TSUD Library/Technology Building

Let's continue our tour of the TSUD Library/Technology Building...

Join me on the second floor of the TSUD Library/Technology Building as it is dedicated entirely to a Library with networked computer stations allowing online access to national and international databases and library catalogs, the Internet, and the TSUD Intranet. Students need access to technology, a quiet place to study, resources to conduct research, and a central place to meet with study groups. As the center of all learning, our library meets the needs of the hundreds of students, faculty members, and Wiregrass citizens who will be using the facility every day. Our second floor library is approximately 19,330 square feet.

LOGOS is printed on a monthly basis by the Division of Student and Community Services.
